PUBLIC SERVICE ANNOUNCEMENT

CITY OF ALAMOGORDO

Alamogordo Public Library

Indie Author Day

Alamogordo, NM Friday, October 29, 2021 The Alamogordo Public Library will host its third Indie Author Day event on Saturday, November 13, 2021, from 12:00 pm to 4:00 pm. Indie Author Day, in cooperation with the Indie Author Project, is a day to bring libraries, authors, and readers together for a day of education, networking, writing, and live panels on one single day each year. APL is excited to announce the following authors to be featured at this year's event.

Nicholas J. Wedlow is an author of educational nonfiction memoirs who is also serving on active duty at Holloman AFB. Wedlow has been a lifelong writer and began writing poems, short stories, and essays in elementary school. Wedlow's memoir, Overnight Father, was written to educate and inspire fathers from all walks of life to pursue time with and be active in their children's lives.

Dawn Clare, a professional archaeologist, writes fiction and nonfiction. Her stories reflect a diverse background, reminding us of the connection with Earth, our past, and humanity's tools for expanding awareness. Clare's latest book, Last Voyage: Earth Ascending, is her first science fiction novel.

Dianne Brown is a writer, editor, book blogger and reviewer. She is the former CEO of Helm Publishing and has 25 years of experience in the industry.

Amy Rivers is the Indie Author Project's 2021 Indie Author of the Year. Rivers is an Otero County native and currently lives in Colorado. She has published several works of fiction. Her latest book, Complicit: a Legacy of Silence, is a thriller set in Alamogordo and is the first book in a planned series. Rivers is a mother, wife, and the Director of the Northern Colorado Writers. "I am so very honored to be named 2021 Indie Author of the Year. I am excited to celebrate and help promote my fellow indie authors. Community support for our work is absolutely critical in getting our books into the hands of new readers. Hope to see you there!" said Rivers of the event at the Alamogordo Public Library.

Indie Author Day will be held in the Southwest Room, is free to attend, and light refreshments will be served. Please call the reference desk at 575-439-4148 for more information.
